Excitement Heats up at SLAM's Nepisiguit Deposit

SLAM Chairman and Board of Directors Visit Site

November-10-2011

There's a lot of excitement lately about SLAM's wholly owned Nepisiguit Deposit in New Brunswick. Recent drill results encountered a 14.8 m VMS segment with visible copper and zinc mineralization. The first assays returned from the current drill program have been very positive showing high grades of Zinc, Silver and Copper.

Chairman, Dr. John Hansuld and other members of SLAM's board of directors recently traveled to the site to see it first-hand.

Dr. Hansuld, who has recently been inducted into the Canadian Mining Hall of Fame, liked what he saw.

The Nepisiguit deposit is located just 15 km southwest of historic BMS 12 currently owned by Xstrata, a 200 million oz., zinc/lead deposit, now in its final years of production. The Xstrata mill is accessible by a roadway which traverses the Nepisiguit property.

With early exploration showing similar structures to Xstrata's deposit, SLAM feels there is great potential at Nepisiguit and is in the midst of an aggressive exploration program drilling with two diamond drills, a trenching operation and down-hole EM testing. Logging and sampling of cores is ongoing while assays are pending.
